The conference is being arranged cooperatively by the National Distance Education University, known in Spanish as Universidad Nacional de Educación a Distancia (UNED), together with Human Dignity and Humiliation Studies (HumanDHS), and the World Dignity University initiative.

We very much thank Professor Saulo Fernández and Professor Emeritus José Francisco Morales Domínguez for convening this conference!

Saulo Fernández is Associate Professor of Social Psychology at UNED University in Spain. Supported by his mentor, Professor Emeritus José Francisco Morales Domínguez, his research interests include the study of humiliation as a distinct emotional experience, aiming to identify the particular situational determinants and cognitive appraisals that predict humiliation, as well as the consequences that the experience of humiliation has for the victims. He is also interested in the study of the experience of the social stigmatisation and humiliation among people with physical handicap and on the moral perceptions and expectancies that majority group members develop toward minority group members.

Human Dignity and Humiliation Studies is a diverse transdisciplinary network of more than 7000 scholars, researchers, educators, practitioners, creative artists, and others, all devoted to building human dignity and addressing issues of humiliation that disrupt human relationships at all levels, locally and globally. In 2011 HumanDHS launched the World Dignity University initiative. All our efforts are a labour of love and not for profit.

Each year we organise a global conference – typically comprised of up to 60 participants – to encourage collaboration, to share achievements, and exchange views on challenges to promoting dignity. Over the last decade, since 2003, our conferences have been convened in many notable locations around the world, including in Europe (Paris, Berlin, Oslo, Dubrovnik), Costa Rica, China, Hawai'i, Turkey, Egypt, New Zealand, South Africa, Rwanda, Chiang Mai in Northern Thailand, the Amazon of Brasil, and Indore in Central India.

All our conferences are convened in acknowledgement of the crucially important historical times we live in. Our challenge is to create a world in which all people can enjoy a dignified life. All our conferences therefore advocate the notion of dignity, not just locally, but globally.

With the support from our host institutions, we will aim to cultivate a unique learning environment in our conference in 2020 in Spain, enriched by the participation of individuals with diverse experiences, perspectives, and backgrounds, all bringing with them first-hand knowledge of the most urgent issues of our time.

We are therefore delighted to welcome our international participants to our 2020 conference in Madrid, together with interested local participants, among them local students, faculty, staff, and others who would like to join us. With bringing together international participants with a local community, we wish to energise efforts on all sides to create a world that advances the dignity of all people.

We appreciate your willingness to be an essential part of our conference. Your participation is of great importance. We are certain that your contribution to the conference will have helpful reverberations not only for your work, but also for our dignity network's scholars and practitioners working throughout the world.

Sincerely yours,
